To whom it may concern:

I feel that the proposed Microsoft judgement is fatally flawed. If they wish to remain a monopoly, then they must accept the consequences of being a regulated monopoly.. If they want to be on their own, then they must be held accountable for their abysmal behaviour in the computing industry. The proposed settlement is nothing more than a reward for their bad behaviour. If nothing else, they should be broken into four or five different companies to make sure that they don't concentrate this much influence again.
